Not illustrated. 1809 Excerpt: .not see that this proposition (the converse of the former) is by no means true? May not a triangle and a square be equal figures, that is, have equal areas? And can a right-lined figure, having only three sides, laid upon another having four sides, agree with it every where in the boundary lines? Again, if two triangles have their sides respectively equal, their angles will also be respectively equal, by the 8th I. El. par. 39. But if two triangles have their angles respectively equal, it does not follow that their sides will be respectively equal; this may or may not be true, as it happens, as will be shewn hereafter. Converse propositions, therefore, need a proof, notwithstanding this has been termed superfluous and impertinent by some who call themselves mathematicians. ON THE DEFINITIONS. 16. In a definition, all those ideas are enumerated which constitute the abstract idea of...
