Dog Ear Publishing, United States, 2009. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 226 x 150 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .A dream-come-true turns into a nightmare. When Frank Hollander moves his family from a small Illinois town to Milstot, a suburb of Chicago, it seems like a lifelong dream come true. They move into a beautiful old house, the boyhood home of Chicago s most powerful business mogul - Leonard Kingsley. While moving in Frank discovers a hidden room in the attic above the garage and in that room evidence of a terrible crime. Could it be connected to a thirty-year-old cold murder case? Frank, with the help of a local police detective and a new friend with CIA connections, starts poking around to solve the case. As the evidence piles up, could the police be closing in on the real killer? Or could there be more powerful forces at work pulling the strings? Even when wheels turn slowly God is in control. Even as Frank is trying to get his family settled into their new life, the horrible history of the house is revealed. Can God really use him to help right the wrongs done so long ago? All he can do is constantly be in prayer for the case to be solved and God s will to be done. Things aren t resolved as quickly or as simply as he d like and it is in that realization that he learns that life is run on God s timetable - not his. Frank comes to have a deeper appreciation for just how much God loves us all - even those who commit terrible crimes against others. Jay Tepe lives in Joplin, Missouri-transplanted there in 1985 due to his second job in radio. Born in...
