Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: .condition, previous observers, such as Oppenheim (2), Beadles (3), etc., have drawn attention to the frequency with which aneurisms of the larger cerebral arteries arise from their points of division and from certain other sites of predilection, and to the relative frequency of the occurrence of such aneurisms in young individuals in whom there is no other evidence of arterial disease. The fact that in this case there was complete absence of anything to indicate a reason for the local disappearance of the middle coat, seems entirely to favour the view that the predisposing cause of the aneurism was a congenital defect of this coat. From the clinical aspect, the case was of unusual interest in several respects: (1) The occurrence of a transitory attack of giddiness, with headache a week previous to the commencement of the fatal illness; (2) the sudden onset with unconsciousness associated with convulsive seizures of a special character without, in the first instance, any definite paralysis on either side of the body, but with a later temporary flaccidity of the muscles; (3) the large amount of blood-stained cerebro-spinal fluid obtained by lumbar puncture on two occasions; (4) the duration of life for twelve days after the first onset; and (5) the apparent partial recovery during the illness. With regard to the first transitory attack of giddiness, it appears not improbable that this may have been associated with either the first development of the secondary sac or with a slight rupture of...
